

HEALTHY EATING & SAVING MONEY

Whether or not you have diabetes, buying healthy foods one can afford can be difficult at times. Here are 10 shopping tips that can help you eat well and also save money:

1. Plan your meals before you shop.
2. Make a list of the foods you'll buy, and stick to your list.
3. Shop at super or club stores, like BJ's, Costco, and Walgreens.
4. Buy store brands whenever you can.

5. Use the Nutrition Facts label to compare similar healthy foods and buy the one with the best price.
6. Buy healthy sale items in large sizes.
7. Plain (no sauces or flavorings) frozen vegetables and fruits are often cheaper than fresh and just as healthy.
8. Buy foods in season, when prices are the lowest.
9. Limit (avoid) buying processed and fat- or sugar-free foods. They often cost more and are less healthy.
10. Use coupons and reward cards when you check out.
